5) 1/1 Research Project #5 (1pts)

William's answers

Liam Christian:

Does death penalty take away from crime and should it be involved or not?

- * Death penalty has been one of the most controversial topics
- * Death penalty still legal in the United States, eye for an eye
- * Feels that it is morally wrong to kill a person in order to punish for a crime.
- * Not affective to crime solving because of moral reasoning shows we solve problems by homicide.
- * Statistics show it isn't an affective deterrent; homicide rates in topics in 2003
- * Higher in the national average
- * Not the excuse of a crime
- * Depending on the judge and defense attorneys and they're past experiences can affect the outcome
- * Death penalties different than any other punishment because its irrevocable
- * Unfair with income and where someone stands financially; if they don't have a lot of money they cant have good representation in court which can affect the outcome
